

Audio Conferencing

Broaden Your Targeting with the Products that Business Customers Want

Businesses are always searching for ways to reduce operational costs and travel expenses. By embracing conferencing services as an advanced form of communication between employees and clients, businesses have been eliminating unnecessary expenses and increasing productivity. The conferencing service from NetworkiP is a comprehensive, wholesale solution that enables distributors and resellers of telecom services to brand their own conferencing products and generate new revenue from the booming small and medium-size business marketplace.

Our conferencing service is a white-label solution, enabling clients to brand it as their own. Additionally, clients can take advantage of APIs to customize both the user interface and the service functionality to meet consumer demands.
